DID YOU KNOW?

Need a fresh idea for a place card at your table?

Just get a pinecone from the yard and dip it in your choice of paint color. Then simply add the name card to the top of the cone.

- 10 November 1871: 'Dr Livingstone, I presume?' Welsh-born journalist Henry Morton Stanley found his quarry, the Scottish missionary and explorer David Livingstone, in present-day Tanzania, but did not say "Dr Livingstone, I presume?" The statement was invented the following year by the editor of the newspaper who had sent Stanley to Africa.
- 13 November 1914: A big day for ladies' underwear Backless bra. Distracted by hedonistic adventures, she sold the patent for $1,500 to a company that went on to make a fortune.
- 24 November 1434: The River Thames turns to ice This day saw the first recorded instance of the river Thames in London freezing. Throughout the so-called Little Ice Age of c1350–1850 the river commonly froze, and Frost Fairs were held on the ice.
